Tokyo, 22 November 2016: Narita International Airport Corporation (NAA) is delighted to announce Vanilla Air (IATA code: JW) will commence two new services at Narita, one to Kansai from 18th and the other to Hakodate, from 19th February 2017.

Vanilla Air currently operates services to 4 overseas destinations (Taipei, Kaohsiung, Hong Kong, Ho Chi Minh) and 3 domestic destinations (New Chitose, Amami Oshima, Naha) from Narita Airport. In addition to these new Kansai and Hakodate services, Vanilla Air is scheduled to launch the first-ever Cebu service by a Japanese airline from 25 December this year as well, thus in total, Vanilla Air network will expand to total of 5 overseas and 5 domestic destinations.

The new Hakodate route will offer Vanilla Air customers a choice to make a circle trip of Hokkaido using the existing New Chitose route from Narita. Vanilla Air will also offer customers from Asia an easy access to this new domestic destination, by way of connection at Narita Airport.

The Kansai route, on the other hand, will be a double daily service and it will provide greater convenience offering a choice of flights to suit customer's individual schedule needs for both customers departing from Greater Tokyo and those departing from Kansai.

With Hakodate added to Narita Airport's domestic network destinations and up to total of 10 flights a day to Kansai, Narita is ready to serve you with a bigger, better network.
