Japan Airlines to launch a Narita <=> Delhi route
Expanding its India route and making it more convenient to transit to North America, too!

Japan Airlines (IATA code: JL) will launch a direct flight between Narita and Delhi (India) starting from January 17, 2026. This Delhi route will bring the total number of JAL routes between Narita to India to two, in addition to the Bengaluru route, which celebrated its fifth anniversary in 2025.

India has a population of about 1.4 billion people and is expected to maintain one of the world's top economic growth rates going forward. Delhi is attracting international attention as a key political, economic, and cultural hub. In addition, demand for travel from India to Japan is robust, with the number of visitors from India projected to exceed 300,000 in 2025.

The launch of this Delhi route will not only significantly contribute to expanding business, tourism, and cultural exchange between Japan and India, but also further enhance the Narita's vital hub function of connecting India and North America.

We invite you to take advantage of Narita Airport's further enhanced network through Japan Airlines' expanded network to India.
